

Aim High

Have you ever thought about how much better life would be if you aimed high? Well I have. Aiming high could improve our lives so much. Your goals would be high. So you would be better at sports; for example if you walked up to home plate you expect to hit the ball. Then you probably would.

Aiming high, How might you try to aim high? You set your goals as high and as possible. If you keep this mind set you might achieve all your goals. Some might take more work than others, but that's okay. For example, an easy goal might be to clean your desk. A bigger goal might be to get all A's and B's in school.

To aim high you have to have confidence, confidence is key to aiming high. So have confidence and believe in yourself you can do it. This mindset helps a lot in sports so if you're going in for a lay up in basketball, don't think "well I'm going to miss this lay up" think "I'm going to make this shot".

Keep aiming high, try to be the best you can be. Aim high, set your goals high, but not too high. With time you could reach them all. Life would be better if you aimed high.

Norman Vincent Peale said, "Shoot for the moon, and you will land among the stars". By aiming high not only will I have a better chance at improving in sports or whatever my goals are. Keeping this in mind, I definitely will not strike out on my other goals in life.
