

How I Accomplish My Dreams

My dream is to be a successful MLB player for the Los Angeles Dodgers when I grow up. I have goals and lots of them. I have players I look up to and follow. I think the most important thing to do is never quit, aim high, and always expect to win.

To me the most important thing is to never quit. When I want to play a baseball game or any sport, make a really good grade on a test or play a board game, and it doesn't come easy to me, I try to remind myself to just keep going with my eyes on the right path.

I think you should set high goals but always try to keep them close enough to reach. If you set several small goals they can turn into big accomplishments. When I do reach one of my goals, I set more to keep me motivated and moving forward. I think as long as I am working for something I will be able to hit my goals.

I think when I decide to do anything I should expect to win. It seems like attitude has a lot to do with my success. If I have it in my mind I will win then it helps me believe in myself.

So at the end of the day, I think I should never quit, always follow my dreams and reach for my goals. I should always expect to win. In conclusion, if I follow this path I can accomplish all my dreams one day.
